To be a new member of any organisation is always a difficult role to undertake as it is accompanied with mixed feelings of curiosity and insecurity.

ISPSO is an organisation with a long history and tradition and with a huge diversity in its members' experience, views and passions. This fact makes of it an enormous source of opportunities but sometimes also a difficult place to share with the others. All of us have our personal stories of excitements and disappointments when fitting the place to our expectations or ourselves to the rules of the place.

We created the New members' space in order that new members can meet and learn more about each other, would share their experiences of being a new member, will get familiar with the history of ISPSO and its resources for professional growth and participation, and could offer their own ideas and initiatives to the organisation.

We believe that together we could create good opportunities for support, sharing and satisfaction in our organization.
